

POWELL HOUSE

SUMMER 2020

"I wish it need not have happened in my time," said Frodo.

"So do I," said Gandalf, "and so do all who live to see such times. But that is not for them to decide. All we have to decide is what to do with the time that is given us."

I hope you will forgive me for returning to the Tolkein I quoted in the end of last term's newsletter. Throughout the last three months, it has come back to mind time and time again as being particularly apt for our times. The coronavirus has messed things right up, the silent enemy threatening lives and livelihoods, imposing social distancing and lockdown, forcing education to screens and Teams. From a Powell perspective, this was certainly not the term we had expected, nor wanted: the loss of cricket, tennis, house golf, Sports Day, Dell Play, fun on the courts and College Field in the sun. I have been struck over the last few weeks to hear from so many boys returning individually to house to pick up kit or drop off books, just how much they have missed normal school life – their friends, the social buzz, the old routines, the activity. This has not been an easy term.

The response, though, has been magnificent. The boys have more than risen to the challenge. In terms of academic study, they have adapted quickly and made the most of the new platforms, routines and expectations. Exam groups generally made the very most of pre-A-Level and pre-university courses. Year 9, Year 10 and Lower Sixth ERC effort grades have risen – in some cases, spectacularly so. As for the Powell musicians, they embraced the challenge of online instrumental lessons. I am so very grateful to Ed Gent and friends for putting on the brilliant, uplifting Powell Stay in the House Concert. In terms of sport, the Round the World Challenge has helped keep us physically active and mentally fresher. Thank you so very much to the huge number of Powell families who have taken part in this, remembering to set and stop tracking apps (and cursing when you forget!) and uploading distances. It has given an overly competitive outgoing housemaster great joy and satisfaction seeing the Powell community rise up from last place to pole position. It is quite extraordinary to think that together we have made it over halfway round the world just by cycling, running or walking. Together, we travelled 23,386km. That is impressive. This has not been the times any of us wished for or expected, but it was the term that we got. Your response has been first class. Well done for persevering, adapting, supporting each other. Well done for making the best use of the time.

I am so very proud of the Powell community. It has been a real honour to have been part of it for the last seven years. Thank you so very much to all of you for making the Miller family so very welcome. Thank you for your generosity with parting gifts, kind words and brilliant video messages. Thank you to you all for your support over the years: tutors, boys, parents, families. A huge thank you to the utterly amazing Julie. I urge the Powell boys to keep building the community: to look out for each other, to be inclusive, to pursue excellence together in all that everyone does. Look after Julie. Mr Mason is going to be brilliant. I have every confidence that he will lead Powell to even greater heights of achievement and character. Please make him as proud to be Powell as I have been, and as proud as I know you are.

We wish all those leaving the very best. Thank you for being an active part of the Powell community. Please do keep in touch. We wish everyone a very happy summer. Stay safe. Let us all keep making the most of the time that is given us.

Johnny Miller, June 2020

YEAR 9

In their first year, the Powell Year 9 have enjoyed their sport. Sam Hamilton and Thomas Johnston showcased their rugby skills in the U14A team. Sam has been training with Saracens development squad. Alex Davies, Oliver Edmead, Fred Jensen, Alan McMahon and Oliver May enjoyed being part of the Bs. In hockey, Sam, Fred, and Oliver May enjoyed a great first season with the College in the U14As, getting through to the semi-final of the County Cup, losing only by penalty flicks. In the Bs, Alex Edwards and Thomas Johnston contributed well. Alan was also part of the winning Fives team against Christ's Hospital. Sam competed in the Sussex Cross Country Championships back in January. Andreas Photiou is a great table tennis player, coming second overall in the house table tennis competition. Alex Davies, Oliver Edmead, Fred, and Oliver May are all keen mountain bikers in their spare time too. Unfortunately, they have not been able to show their cricket or athletic skills over the summer term, so we look forward to next year.

There is also plenty of creative talent. In terms of music, the Powell Year 9 play a variety of instruments. Sam showcased his guitar skills along with Alex Davies, who also plays drums. Both Fred and Oliver May play in the College Orchestra – Fred on oboe and Oliver on percussion. Both performed solos in this summer's Powell "Stay in the" House Concert. Both also play violin and sing in the College Choir along with Chris Johnson-Bird. Fred was also part of the house a cappella group which unfortunately did not get the chance to perform due to lockdown. Alan is a budding pianist. Perhaps the Year 9 musical highlight of the year was performing Bohemian Rhapsody together in the House Concert. Regarding drama, the boys enjoyed putting on a ten-minute Jungle Book, with Thomas Johnston playing a particularly menacing Shere Khan. Artistically, scholars Alex Davies and Oliver Edmead continue to show their skills in the Art and DT departments.

There has been plenty of academic endeavor and success, too. End of Term Class Effort Awards were awarded to Fred (History, Geography, Classical Civilisation), Andreas (Geography), Sam and Oliver Edmead (both DT). Tom Arnold was awarded the College Year 9 Greek prize; Fred the Music Prize. Most of the year group were above the year group average effort grade in each round of eRCs, with Alan and Fred leading the way this term.

YEAR 10

This term has been an eventful one but an enjoyable one in certain aspects. All the boys have missed the social aspect of College life but everyone's been keeping active whether it be cycling or just going out for a walk. Everyone has been doing their bit for the Round the World challenge. A special mention must go to Noah's family as they have cycled what Noah thinks to be around 2,000 kilometres. Academically I think the boys have been challenged, some more than others, but as a whole we have kept our heads held high and we have got to the end of term. Although it's been from our screens, this term has been a productive one as we have got a lot of work done and got to grips with the tech very quickly.

As for the boys: Jules Bass Gualbert recorded a great saxophone piece for the 'Stay in the' House Concert, and has put in some serious kms for Round the World. Wilf Batham-Read and Noah James have both hugely missed cricket, but worked hard to maintain fitness and keep up with studies. Charlie Carpenter has also mourned the loss of the cricket season, but has been making real progress with maths in particular, and enjoyed lots of mountain biking. Elliot Wilson has also been out biking, running and working hard—his ERC effort grades among the very highest in the whole of Year 10. Francesco Bongiovanni has kept up really well while increasingly helping out at the family restaurant as lockdown eases. Dominic Forward has been studying and gardening; Ollie Farrant has been working hard and building his business empire. Max Giddins is another who has pedalled out a great many kilometres along the south coast. George Lowery has impressively stepped up with academic studies, suggesting some great GCSE results might just be on the way next year. Ben Young performed a great song in the 'Stay in the' House Concert and is looking forward to taking the lead role in next term's College production of Les Miserables. We have really enjoyed having Max Mappin with us this year, and wish him all the very best at his new school in Switzerland.

Thanks to Mr Miller and Mr Medlycott, we have stayed on track with work and how to set out our day. Overall, we have really enjoyed this term and this year.

YEAR 11

For the short time Alexander Augnet has been here, he has sparked some interesting conversations as it is evident that the French lifestyle is very different to the English one. Nevertheless he is always positive and has a talent for history and an interest in politics and of course he can speak French.

Kane Benton joined us in Year 10 and has been a solid member of the house for two years, winning an impressive three end of year class effort awards. He has impressive DT and entrepreneurial skills and started a clothing brand with another boy in our year. He is basically Lord Sugar with his humour and thinking, which makes him a really good contribution to the house. He also has a passion for languages and excels at French and Spanish.

Henry Duke is a top chap providing excellent chat in the prep room. He is very sporty, playing A-team rugby every year. He also goes to the gym regularly, as well as being in the tennis team and competing at the Eton event. He also performed well in the Steeplechase and is always a key figure for Inter-House sport.

James Grout has a huge passion for music, with drums in particular, which has seen him win the Year 11 Music Prize. He has performed in many concerts such as Love Lounge, the Christmas Concert and many other informal ones. His drama is also excellent and he is like our year's chaplain, being the most innocent out of us. We can always rely on him for a moral and honest view, and is always kind and polite and looking out for others.

Eugene is our big, friendly Ukrainian. Everyone loves his contagious laugh and ability to make any situation funny. He is also very caring and not as scary as you think, except when he is mad which is like wrestling a bear. He has a love for the RAF and is the best in his year and section due to his past experience with Air Cadets. He provides excellent support from the stands in house competitions as he is off games 24/7 but put in a major shift for house swimming, gaining us lots of points as he came first in 25m butterfly and helped win the relay.

Calm, collected and always happy, we all love Harry Johnson. He surprised us all at Steeplechase coming top 10, proving he is a very good runner. He loves his art, completing his GCSE focusing on oil paintings and drawings in which I'm sure he will do well. He is also a very good saxophonist, and plays in the Jazz Band.

Joe Muschialli has some class humour and is very academic, completing his maths IGCSE a year early and earning high grades in Additional Maths this year. Joe is this year's Year 11 History Prize winner. He is very good at drama and performed an excellent sketch in the House Concert from Monty Python. He was also in the house band. For his DofE volunteering, he did musical theatre coaching.

Will Neal is always an overall good lad and friends with everyone in the house. He is very bright, also completing his IGCSE maths a year early and doing Additional Maths in Year 11. He is excellent at drama, doing backstage work for The Crucible. He also performed in the Monty Python sketch in the House Concert. He is an avid runner but sadly couldn't participate in the Steeplechase this year due to injury.

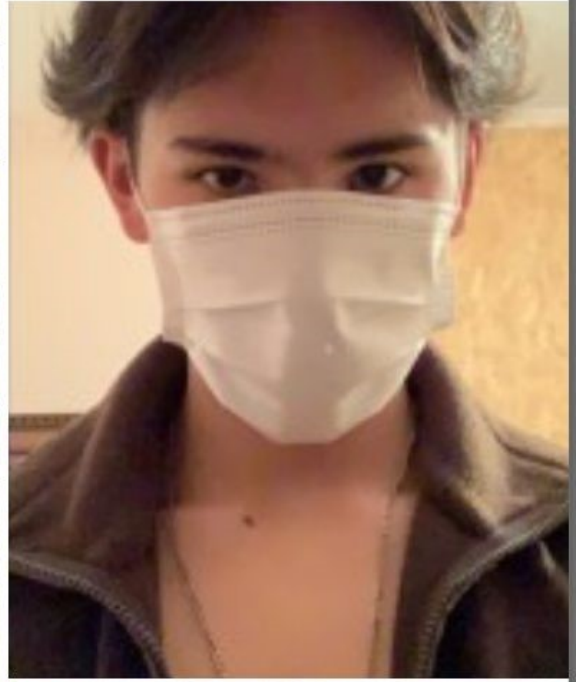

Will Oates is at the heart of the fun in the prep room and around the house. He loves to try his hardest in all house competitions, no matter the sport or event. He is a very good golfer, competing in a few events for both the College and Sussex, and making the U16 England Boys national championship at the end of the year. He also played 1st Football.

Chris O'Hanlon has a great personality and we love his American accent and way in the house. He loves his rugby, playing A's for almost all of each season, and is a big ice hockey and hockey fan, playing A's every year. He is also a great actor and loves drama. He took a main role in The Crucible and performed magnificently in his GCSE drama practical.

Callum O'Reilly also loves his rugby, playing both for the College A team and Heathfield every year. He also runs his hardest in the Steeplechase. He was in the house concert in the form of a video which made us laugh and also completed his GCSE drama piece to a very high standard. He is very caring and enjoys big discussions about all sorts of issues.

Tom Pedley is always great company around the house and in the prep room, providing quality memes in breaks. He is very sporty playing A's in rugby, cricket and hockey every year, including 2nd team hockey this year. He has earned a place in Sussex squads for pretty much every sport. He is incredibly supportive backstage with drama, and completed his GCSE practical "Dealers Choice" with Chris to a very high standard.

Dexter Richardson enjoys being at the heart of all the fun and activity. He enjoys academic study, again completing Additional Maths this year. He is very keen at French. He enjoys rugby and hockey and always puts his best foot forward. He enjoyed baking for his Greek and Latin set for his DofE skill.

The LOWER SIXTH

This year's welcoming of seven new boys into the Lower Sixth has brought an enhanced feeling of competitiveness and camaraderie, helping us to dominate in not only inter-house and school sports but academic life also. The current situation with the coronavirus and remote learning has given the boys a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to better themselves physically, mentally and academically. I think we have all used this challenging time very productively. The effort of the Lower Sixth boys has really cemented Powell's place at the top of the Round the World Challenge leaderboard.

Ali Al-Shamaa has excelled academically all year in maths, biology and chemistry, and will be looking at applying to a top medical school when the time comes. During lockdown he has been volunteering at Bexhill Hospital, a selfless and very admirable act that will no doubt help him achieve his aspirations of working in healthcare. Ali has been a key member of the school football 1st XI and his experience helped greatly to steer the Powell senior team to victory in the inter-house football tournament. Loïc Bass Gualbert, a crucial part of the school orchestra (as the only trumpeter), silenced the whole school on Remembrance Day with his outstanding performance of The Last Post. During the winter, Loïc proved his worth in the rugby world moving up from the 3rd XV and playing most of his season with the 2nd XV. Loïc's hard work and extensive co-curricular activities will no doubt help him in his journey into veterinary medicine. George Callow was new to the Lower Sixth this year and has fully embraced College life. His quick hands and fantastic rugby knowledge has been a great help to the success of the College 2nd XV as well as the Powell team. George will be looking to play in the front row of the 1st XV next year where his strong carries and fast thinking will be highly respected. Callum Corney, also a new addition to the Lower Sixth and a keen geographer, has fitted in well. He has very much enjoyed his first year at the College. He has been a leading player in the 3rd XV for rugby and top scorer for the 2nd XI for football. Callum's contribution this year should help him secure a spot on the 1st XI next year. Ed Gent has continued to impress the house and school this year with his gift for the performing arts. Along with Thomas Simpkin, Giacomo Ghio and Sean Wilson, Ed coordinated and directed our Year 9 drama piece, The Jungle Book. As part of our house concert, Ed rallied together some of the Lower Sixth boys to create a video inspired by the popular game show "Golden Balls". In this video two boys at a time were offered a bag of sweets with the option to spit or steal. This video tested the morals of some of our boys and provided some great laughs. Ed also performed flawlessly in The Crucible and Jerusalem as part of his Drama A-level. Ed finished the year by putting together the Powell 'Stay in the' House Concert, two End of Year Class Effort awards, and the Lower Sixth Drama Prize.

Giacomo Ghio's kind and hard-working nature is admired and respected by all. He has been appointed deputy head of house and a school prefect for next year, and will be excellent in these roles. This year Giacomo has made huge contributions to the house by helping direct the Year 9 drama, playing hockey for the Powell team, and various other duties around the house. Giacomo played very well this year for the rugby 2nd XV, his nimble feet making for a great winger. Spike Gleave has stood out this year for not only his continued hard work academically but also his pivotal role as the kicker (and inside centre) for the 1st XV. His dedication did not go unnoticed with Spike awarded half colours at the end of the Michaelmas term. Spike also greatly contributed to this year's success in the inter-house football and rugby, not forgetting his valiant if unsuccessful attempts in the inter-house squash alongside Ali. Spike's music has been top notch, representing the house on percussion in the Young Musician of The Year finals and also performing brilliantly in the 'Stay in the' House Concert. Ed Hebron joined this year and again fitted in immediately. His eRCs have been getting stronger and stronger. Ed was promoted from the rugby 3rd XV to the 2nd XV, for whom he played most of the season. His willingness to get stuck in at games time was a great help towards the success of the team. He also enjoys painting, tinkering with LandRover engines, mountain biking and fishing – even though he hasn't caught anything yet. Callum Hynes loves computers, chess and horse riding. He competes at a national level on Troy (his horse) and continues to enjoy great success both in individual and team events. David Li has adapted well to sixth form life and has been enjoying studying English and history. He hopes to study law at university. This year he has made huge improvements to his rugby by playing for the 3rd XV and for the Powell second team. Louis Loubser has worked hard in all aspects of College life. He is such a nice guy and is ridiculously talented at everything. This year, he managed to find the right balance between academic work, sport and music. Louis has been excelling in all four of his A-level subjects as well as playing 2nd XV Rugby and the 1st XI Hockey. On top of this, Louis has developed a talent for playing the oboe as a member of the school orchestra. Louis has enjoyed his time in the Lower Sixth and has set himself up well for the Upper Sixth year. Will Lowery has really made the most of remote learning, being awarded multiple show hsms from the business, economics and PE departments. Will played most of his rugby season for the 2nd XV with one call up to the 1st XV, so it's safe to say he will be on Mr Torri's shortlist for the top team next year. Will also enjoys playing golf and football.

Alexander Photiou is a talented artist. He has very much enjoyed this year's gallery trips, and has produced some real masterpieces. He has also has a passion for physics. Alex represented the school in the 4th XI for hockey this year, and is another keen golfer. He contributed well to the Round the World Challenge with some regular rides along the seafront. Kamran Rajwani has continued his success from GCSE into the sixth form and will be looking at some very prestigious universities in the coming weeks. For his service at school this year, he tutored French to Year 11 students from Ratton and Willingdon Community Schools. Kamran is an excellent role model to the younger boys, so is perfect for a senior leadership role in house. Alex Richards has really enjoyed his first few terms at the College. A highlight for him this year is attending networking events with the school, and meeting former PM Tony Blair in the process. Alex played football for the 2nd XI and is very proud to have been a part of the inter-house football winning team. Wali Sahebzadeh has embraced the challenge of moving to a new school and has enjoyed life in Powell. Wali has been commended for being willing to do the dirty work on the rugby pitch and played fearlessly in the inter-house rugby tournament. Thomas Simpkin has really shown his passion for the performing arts with his success in drama and his stellar performance in Jerusalem. Tom played in the front row for the 3rd XV where his scrummaging skills came in very handy. Tom also featured in the Lower Sixth video, helped to direct the Year 9 drama piece, and was an excellent 'voice-over guy' for the 'Stay in the' House Concert. Sean Wilson loves studying history, reading the house newspapers, and politics. He is a very talented actor, performing well in The Crucible and securing a good role in this summer's Open Air Shakespeare in the Italian Gardens. Sadly, this has now been postponed to next year but we very much look forward to seeing him in it eventually.

The UPPER SIXTH

Powell Upper Sixth has had another tremendous year, from continually improving in their academics, to performing on the sports pitches, especially house rugby. Some have also made it onto the big stage in College theatre. The Upper Sixth this year took a very committed approach towards their roles as leaders in the house. The house prefects were key to ensure that the lower year groups were doing well and safeguarding their wellbeing. We have all managed to do our UCAS applications and are looking forward to a bright future at university or an equivalent.

Charlie Reed has thoroughly enjoyed his last year at the College, with one of his best memories this year being winning inter-house rugby. He has also been a valuable member of the College's basketball team. Academically, Charlie has enjoyed all his subjects and has been committed to his work throughout these two years. Another one of Charlie's highlights has been his trip to CERN with his physics class, where he was able to see the theory side of his course in practice. His plan for next year is to read Maths at Imperial. Charlie will miss the social aspect of house life the most, but I am sure he will manage to stay in touch with the rest of his year group in the years to come.

Mikhail Konovalov has had an impressive final year at the College. Working 'smarter and harder', he has greatly improved in his schoolwork, becoming increasingly conscientious in all he does. Some of his highlights this year include being an avid supporter of the Powell football team during the inter-house matches, as well as enjoying the social aspect of house life. The latter is what Mikhail has said he will miss the most next year. His plans for next year are to take a gap year, during which he is possibly planning on retaking his exams as well as getting some work experience in the financial world.

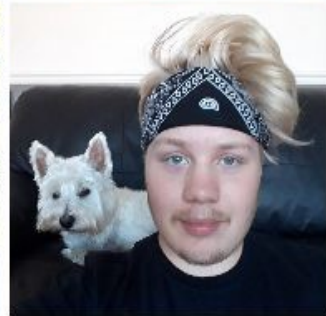

Luke Muschialli has continued to impress this year, whether that be in his academic work or in the Birley Centre improving on his musical skills. He has been an excellent Deputy Head of School, a role model for everyone. Some of his highlights at the College this year have been: leading both the house song and the house concert (and making an amazing success out of both), as well as managing and singing with the house a Capella group. Luke heads off to read medicine and will make an excellent doctor. He takes away with him the R W Nicholson Instrumental Prize and the Senior Biology Prize.

Despite the long bus ride each day, Henry Walters has had another enjoyable year at the College. He has managed to keep an active social life in house as well as finding the time to get his head down and do his work. He has continually improved this year, his efforts being recognised in particular by the economics department. This has led Henry to receive the 'economist of the half-term' prize and winning the highly coveted Economics Award. One of his main highlights this year has been taking part in the Café Night Quizzes, during which he has been able to demonstrate his knowledge on a range of topics. He is looking forward to going to university in September to study Geography. Henry wins the Grimaldi Award this year.

Jake Wheatley got involved in all aspects of College life this year. He joined the 'Be You' group and, through this, has tried to make Eastbourne College an even more inclusive and welcoming place. Through his efforts and determination, his idea to fly a rainbow flag at the top of the main College building to show support for the LGBT history month was approved. Jake was also a great charity representative for Powell and has been a valuable member of the charity committee, attending and contributing to many meetings. Julie will miss him tremendously. Next year, Jake is planning to study medicine at the University of Sussex. He will make an outstanding doctor.

Jacob Doherty has had another wonderful year at the College. He has gotten involved with more than just house life, through his sporting prowess as well as being a member of the debating team. He thoroughly enjoyed playing football this year as well as attending some athletics meets, during which he demonstrated his breath-taking sprinting capabilities. He ends the year with full College colours for both. Some of his highlights this year have been: going on debating trips with the rest of the team, as well as away matches. Jacob has said that above all else, he will miss 'having Julie's toast on demand' and the many friends he has made during the past two years. Next year, he will hopefully be going to the University of Loughborough to study Economics.

Hugo Verelst-Way enjoyed his last year at the College, and like many other Powellians, got involved in many co-curricular events. One of his highlights was taking on the lead role in the College production of The Crucible. His performance was applauded by all those who attended the show, demonstrating his sensational acting skills. Hugo also thoroughly enjoyed Mr Wood's lessons this year, with an emphasis on the use of modern technology to enhance the teaching experience (or watching TV as Hugo would say!) His plans for next year are to get a job to obtain enough funds in order to go on a gap year and travel the world. We are sure he will enjoy himself discovering the world, and more specifically Thailand's nightlife.

Ollie Godfrey has had a great time at the College this year. He particularly enjoyed the house community and the socialising, while also being driven in his academic work. Ollie was also a committed participant in early morning registrations and the Race Around the World during the lockdown period, which showed his enthusiasm and community spirit. Some of his highlights this year have been taking part in the house concert as well as playing in the inter-house football tournament. For next year, he is planning on studying Politics and International Relations, continuing the work that he commenced with his A-Level politics.

James Holley came to school every day, ready to tackle a new day of lessons, sport, and, most importantly, the Café. This year, he has particularly enjoyed playing football and has represented the College in several fixtures. He is a very good hockey player and distance runner, too. He is looking forward to going to university next year.

Elijah Andal enjoyed College life so much he stayed an extra year. For the last two years he has led the College basketball team. This comes at a time when basketball has become a much more significant sport at the College, with the arrival of the new sports hall and an experienced coach. Elijah also enjoyed the occasional trip to the school gym, during which he trained hard to further improve his performance on the court. He took a particular interest in business studies these past few years and is planning on studying economics at university next year.

Thomas Watkins has had another superb year at the College. Tom has thoroughly enjoyed his artwork, spending hours in the art department finalising his portfolio, which has set him up for a successful application to do a foundation year. He ends the year with the award of full College colours for art. He has been on several school trips, including an art trip to London during which he found a lot of inspiration for his own pieces. Some of Tom's highlights this year have been: taking part in the inter-house aquathlon and successfully not coming last, as well as his A-Level-devised drama piece which was an all-round success. His contribution to College drama has been amazing. Next year, Tom is doing an art foundation year, staying close to home in Hastings, ahead of pursuing a course he loves at university.

Alfredo Vazquez has had another fun year, enjoying all three of his academic subjects as well as getting involved in sports and drama. He represented the College, as a committed player, in both the 2nd XV rugby team as well as the mighty 5th XI football team. He is a lightning-fast sprinter. Alfredo enjoyed taking part in small drama productions, as well as improving his understanding of literature, both through his English and drama A-levels. He is looking to read Law and Business at university next year.

Ashraf Owasil continued to work at a good pace in his subjects, something which should set him up well for studying Biomedicine next year. He also enjoyed his sport, especially 2nd XI hockey and tennis, and encouraging other boys in Powell to join him in weekly gym sessions. He has also contributed a lot to College music (drums, piano, violin) – a standout highlight being performing the theme tune to Schindler's List in a major concert. He has also been a stand-out contributor to house concerts. Ashraf has been a source of good humour and positivity, something which has rubbed off on many people in house and around school.

Jake Ludlam has worked hard throughout this year and would have been extremely well set up for his exams this summer. He has helped boys around the house with his knowledge in both physics and economics, which shows his willingness to be a helping hand to others. He also had an impressive rugby season during the Michaelmas term, playing in fixtures every week. Jake is planning to read Economics at university to then go into finance, something I'm sure he will excel at.

Dylan Joyce scared everyone on the football pitch with his dynamic style of defence, something that helped the 5th XI during its high stakes matches. This year, Dylan has enjoyed studying biology and business, and went on a trip to an Amazon warehouse where he saw in practice what he learned in lessons.

Felix Harffey-Burkhill has had another delightful year with, in his opinion, a very successful end to the year as he didn't need to sit his final exams. Despite this, he has been working at a good pace this year, making particular efforts in business and drama. He has performed brilliantly in so many College productions, perhaps most notably A Streetcar Named Desire back in Year 10. His remarkable ability to leave learning his lines to the very last minute is matched only by the choice of wigs the drama department has managed to burden him with over the years. The performance of said wig in The Crucible will live long in the memory. Felix is also a very good sportsman, enjoying the five a side football tournament and playing a key role in goal. He was also 1st XI hockey goalkeeper for a season and a half. Next year Felix is hoping to study Business and Law.

Jack Stepney continued his path to being a rising star in the College's CCF program. His assertiveness and leadership skills allowed him to make it up the ranks and encourage others to try their best. This year Jack has also continued to progress in his academics, specifically in Geography, which he is thinking of reading at university. His performance for the 2nd XI football team also didn't go unnoticed and allowed to participate in many fixtures. Next year, Jack is all set to join the officer's training program at Sandhurst, something I am sure will be extremely challenging – if less stressful than managing the queues at Sainsbury's during lockdown.

Arno Pellet has had a wonderful last year at the College. He continued to enjoy studying his A-Levels, specifically economics, as well as trying out new sports such as the great game of Fives. This year, Arno has served as Head of House and a school prefect, something that he enjoyed and learned a lot from. This will hopefully set him up well for university and his career later in life. Next year, he is planning on studying economics.
